Europe Shaken by Reports of Pact Between Germany, Russia

They'll Spend 4 Billion

WASHINGTON—Eight men in Washington are ready to open the money bags from which will pour some $4,500,000,000 in cash and credit to fight depression. These are the men and this is how they will spend the money:

Slim, pallid HARRY L. HOPKINS, 47, has spent billions on the needy since the New Deal started its work relief program in 1935. As administrator of WPA he probably knows more about federal relief than anyone else. He has employed 1,500,000 to 3,000,000 jobless a year. He gets at least $1,250,000,000 out of the emergency spending-lending bill for new relief jobs. His salary is $12,000.

JESSE JONES, frank and squarejawed, has already started to pass out $1,500,000,000 in loans to business, big and little, which can't borrow from the banks. But the RFC head doesn't expect to spend all he gets—since he deals in loans, not grants. A member of the RFC board since Hoover days, Jones was made RFC chairman by President Roosevelt. His salary is $10,000.

HAROLD L. ICKES, 64-year-old Secretary of Interior, already has spent more than $4,000,000,000 as the first administrator of PWA and he's slated to spend some more. The Chicagoan, who recently married a 25-year-old girl, will lend and spend nearly a billion dollars on a new PWA program of public works. Ickes gets $15,000 a year. He has been Secretary of the Interior since 1933.

NATHAN STRAUS, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, calls his half billion dollar low-cost housing program "slum drainage." To build more houses at low rents, and help prime the economic pumps, Congress is giving him another $300,000,000. Straus has been interested in housing almost since he entered politics. His salary is $10,000.

HENRY A. WALLACE, who coined the New Deal slogan "more abundant life," is slated to get some $175,000,000 to help needy farmers. The son of a former Secretary of Agriculture, Wallace has been trying to devise a "more abundant life" for the farmer since 1933. Once a Republican, he left the editorship of a farm journal to become Secretary of Agriculture under Roosevelt. His salary is $15,000 a year.

Tall JOHN M. CARMODY'S share in the spending-lending fund comes to some $100,000,000. He is administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration, which loans money to electrify farm communities. Born on a farm 50 odd years ago, the big-voiced, blue-eyed REA administrator, was a steel worker and later a production manager. His salary is $10,000 a year.

AUBREY WILLIAMS is director of the National Youth Administration and assistant to Harry Hopkins. The son of an Alabama planter, he once studied to become a preacher, later took a degree in philosophy at the University of Bordeaux, France. For young people who need help, Congress is giving Williams some $75,000,000. His salary is $9,500.

To heavy-set ROBERT FECHNER, who got his start as a rail road worker, goes $50,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation Corps, one of the New Deal's first relief agencies. He runs his organization quietly. Fechner came to Washington in 1933 to start the CCC. His $50,000,000 is in addition to regular CCC funds totalling $226,331,000. His salary is $10,000.

Ashland Police Continue Probe Of Bombing Attempt.

ASHLAND — Investigation of the threatened bombing of a warehouse owned by the Topping brothers on Virginia avenue was continued by Ashland authorities today, though Chief of Police Herman D. Fetzer, however, said no clues or evidence have been discovered. The home-made explosive would have wrecked the industrial district of the city had it not been for a defective fuse. The bomb was found Tuesday, but police did not reveal the discovery until yesterday.

Fetzer said no fingerprints were found on the bomb, and that no foot or tire prints have been discovered. The only persons questioned in connection with the case were residents in the vicinity of the storage warehouse.

Capital Mourns Death Of Senator Copeland

Physician - Legislator Dies of Overwork In Congress Session.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Royal S. Copeland, 69-year-old New York Democrat and physician-legislator, died last night—a victim of the overwork and congressional strain against which he often had cautioned his colleagues.

Death came at 7:45 p. m. at his apartment here after a sudden general circulatory collapse which was complicated by a kidney ailment.

His physician, Dr. Harry Kaufman, said the senator had "driven himself too hard" during the session of congress which ended Thursday night.

Copeland had stayed on the senate floor until almost the last, fighting a dozen major legislative battles under the heavy pressure of a pre-adjournment rush. In the last weeks of the session he served on nine separate committees to work out legislative differences between the house and senate.

Second Solon to Die

His death was the second of a member of congress since the session's end. Rep. Allard H. Gasque (D-Sc) died early Friday. He had been ill of a heart disease for some time.

Arrangements were made to take Copeland's body to his home at Suffern, N. Y., today. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Political friends and enemies—he had many of both—expressed shock and grief at news of the death.

President Roosevelt was one of the first to extend condolences to

SENATOR COPELAND

Mrs. Copeland who, with their son Royal S. jr., was at her husband's bedside. In a telegram from Nahant, Mass., the president said:

"We have been greatly shocked to hear of the senator's sudden death. Mrs. Roosevelt joins me in sending to you our very deep sympathy."

Senator Wagner, the junior New York senator, recalled that Copeland had struggled for days against growing illness to win a battle for the pure food and drug bill he had advocated for the last five years.

"I regarded him as a great and

Roosevelt Sees Youngest Son March to Altar Today

Throngs Gather In Nahant for Wedding of Son, John, To Anne Lindsay Clark at 107-Year-Old Church.

(By Associated Press)

NAHANT, Mass.—In the simple but sonorous single-ring Episcopal ceremony, John Roosevelt and Anne Lindsay Clark were married at noon today in an ancient church close by the sea.

While President and Mrs. Roosevelt watched from a front-row pew a few feet from the flower-bowered, white satin-covered altar, John and Anne took the vows that removed the last bachelor from the Roosevelt family and gave the Clark family its first married daughter.

The two youngsters, both within a few months of their 22nd birthdays, were given the happy auguries of a warm, sunny day. A throng of well wishers filled to the doors the 107-year-old Union church and thousands pressed against the police lines outside.

Uncle Escorts Her.

The bride, wearing a flowing white organdie gown embroidered with many yards of satin ribbon, and a tulle veil and train that required 10 yards of material, swept up the left hand aisle of the tiny church on the arm of her uncle, Russell Sturgis.

Before the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march had died, John joined her before the altar, stepping from the cramped, red carpeted robing room to the right of the chancel. Behind him, as supporter in the bridegroom's traditional hour of discomfort, stood his brother and best man, Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.

Among the 13 ushers—a good luck omen rather than bad, John held—were his two other brothers, while with the bridesmaids stood his one sister, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, in a gown of hya-

$18,000 LEFT

But Cleveland Will Keep Its Relief Stations Open.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Municipal Welfare Director Fred W. Ramsey indicated today that the city's seven district relief offices would remain open although funds to care for the destitute will be exhausted by Monday.

The city's relief fund, drained steadily by an increase in "emergency cases" among 66,000 indigents, stood at $18,000 yesterday.

Ramsey said stations would be closed only if clients attempted to attack welfare workers. Police were sent to a district office yesterday when nearly 200 persons assembled and shouted, "we want food!"

"We might still work out some of their difficulties with landlords or the utilities," Ramsey said.

COUNTY READY TO ASK LEVY FOR T.B. AID

Commissioners Say One-Mill Tax Only Method Left To Meet Increased Needs.

$15,000 ALLOCATION USED

Contend Bills For Rest Of '38 May Go Unpaid; Levy Would Be Third To Go On Ballot.

Faced with the necessity of finding additional funds for the care of county tuberculosis patients, or refusing to accept more patients this year, Richland county commissioners today indicated they would ask for approval of a one-mill tax levy at the November election.

While no action had been taken today to place the proposed levy on the ballot, C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said there is no other alternative than to ask for the levy, if the county is to continue to care for tuberculosis cases.

2 Relief Levies Up Now.

The proposed levy would be the third to go on the county ballot this year. Two relief levies—one in Mansfield for two mills and the other in Mansfield and Madison township for one mill—will be voted on at the August primary.

The county, Mitchell said, spent nearly $7,000 more last year than was appropriated for nursing and hospital expenses for patients and already this year has used all of its $15,000 allocation for that purpose.

With no money available through fund transfers, bills for the remainder of the year may go unpaid unless another source of funds is located, it was indicated.

Would Raise $80,000.

The tax levy, which probably would be for three years, would produce an estimated $80,000 a year, with a part of the total amount to be used for construction of a convalescent home, Mitchell said.

Under the present plan, more advanced cases of tuberculosis are treated at hospitals throughout the state, while patients suffering with less severe cases are cared for at nursing homes.

Mitchell said a convalescent home, such as the one proposed by the county, would provide treatment for most of the patients for whom county funds are sought.

Prague Hears Nazi Ambassador Acts To Negotiate With Stalin; Pact Would Leave Czechs Without Aid From Soviet In Event of Invasion.

Editor's Note: A diplomatic sensation of the first magnitude is revealed today by H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, in the following dispatch from Prague, disclosing reports that Germany again is attempting to negotiate a pact with Soviet Russia.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(International News Service Staff Correspondent, Copyright 1938)

PRAGUE—(INS)—The nightmare of a Russo-German pact arose again to harass the statesmen of Europe today when a report circulated from Berlin sources that Count von der Schulenberg, German ambassador to Moscow, is engaged in an attempt to negotiate with Josef Stalin.

Although vigorously denied by both German and Soviet authorities, the report, coming at this moment of continued tension between Germany and Czechoslovakia, excited serious interest.

The version reaching Prague was that Schulenberg, who is said to be a personal proponent of the Bismarckian policy of Russo-German co-operation, which was also that of the Weimar republic and has continued to be the favorite policy of the majority of the German general staff, has now received permission to sound out Stalin.

His projected inquiries, as reported here, were to be whether Stalin would consider a new pact of non-aggression.

On the surface, this pact would be entirely peaceful and thus calculated to be saleable to both the German and Russian public. Actually, however, it would be of such a nature as to cancel the Franco-Soviet pact, which is the major aim of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's policy.

Wouldn't Aid France.

By providing that Russia would under no circumstances attack Germany, the projected Russo-German pact would bind Russia not to come to the aid of France as provided in the Franco-Soviet military agreement.

It is now realized that the resolute attitude of Russia during the present Czech-German crisis was as effective as that of England in impressing Germany.

To remove Russia from the suddenly-welded front against the Reich would thus be an achievement for which Germany would be willing to make sacrifices. Circulation of such a plan, even without possibility of its realization, would have a practical purpose.

RUTH SIGNS AS DODGERS' COACH

Babe To Get $15,000 A Year In Step Seen Leading To Managership Of Club.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Babe Ruth, baseball's most glamorous figure, today signed a one year contract to coach the Brooklyn Dodgers. He will receive $15,000.

This salary is a record for a baseball coach and probably is at least $5,000 more than that received by Art Fletcher of the Yankees, who is generally supposed to be the highest paid coach in baseball.

Larry MacPhail, business manager of the Dodgers, said Ruth would make his first appearance on the coaching lines tomorrow when the Cubs play a doubleheader at Ebbets field.

It has been rumored around the National league for some time that the former home run king of the Yankees would join the Dodgers in some capacity and many profess to see this move as a step leading to the managership of the club.

"Ruth should be a wonderful help to the Dodgers," said MacPhail today.

"Nobody in the world knows

COPPER BACK

Motion To Release Officer As Ward Of Court Up Monday.

Probate Judge C. J. Anderson said today he would conduct a hearing Monday on a motion for release of Harry Copper, Mansfield city patrolman, as a ward of the court. Copper returned to Mansfield yesterday at the conclusion of a 60-day rest period, during which he was with relatives in southern Ohio.

Expressing a willingness to release Copper if Atty. J. V. Will, his counsel, submits a doctor's certificate showing that Copper's mental condition has improved, Judge Anderson said he would suggest that the patrolman seek another type of employment than police work.

After visiting with Copper late yesterday, Judge Anderson said he was convinced that the rest period has accomplished the desired results with the patrolman, who was described as "mentally ill."

Copper was made a ward of the court and ordered to take a rest in April after he allegedly threatened his wife and children with a gun.

DENIES CHARGE

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Clark Tinker, 39, a clerk in the Columbus central post office, pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing from U. S. mails when arraigned here today before U. S. Commissioner Robert Newlon.

19 Richland Boys Join In Opening Of "Boys' State"

Nineteen Mansfield and Richland county high school boys left today for Columbus to join 722 others from Ohio for the opening of the annual "Boys' State," sponsored by the American Legion.

For 10 days they will set up and operate their own "state." The purpose of the camp is to teach the boys the responsibilities of citizenship.

Monday night Judge Arthur H. Day of the Ohio supreme court will administer the oath of office to the "governor" and state officials who will be elected by the boys Monday. Among the advisers directing the "state" this year is J. Earl Ports of Mansfield, a lieutenant colonel in the National Guard.

Twelve of the boys will go from Mansfield and seven from other county Legion posts. The Mansfield representatives are being sponsored by McVey Post, Order of Ahepa, Spanish War Veterans, Forty and Eight, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Jared Mansfield chapter, D. A. R.

Representing McVey post will be Russell Kelser, Lucas; Howard Taylor, Lexington; Robert Baker, Springfield high school; Pete Mihailoff, Madison high; Joseph Lesch and Roger Nixon, St. Peter's school; Harold Duda, Warren H. Bradford, William A. Harmony, Robert Roth and Mike Horvath, Mansfield Senior high.

The Plymouth post will send Guy Cunningham and Earl Cashman; Shiloh post will be represented by Robert Mosier, and Shelby by Roger Adam, Elmer Hay, Richard Brokaw and Jerome Coleman.

Cash in hand is certainly worth more than a boat on land. This is the time to SELL boats, motors, tents, used trailers, and camp stoves to refrigerators. A Want Ad will find the "lad" to buy the "swag". Just call Canal 4251 and ask for an ad taker.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, June 19.

Sunday's horoscope holds testimonies of great enterprise and initiative. It is a time when highly-stimulated energies and practical plans and programs should carry through brilliantly, with position and probably honors following. It is auspicious to seek these from superiors and those in authority, with the confidence born of work well done.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves deep in a year of very active programs, with the faculties and forces under high stimuli for achievement, gratification and probably honors or tokens of appreciation from high places. Creative ability, sound methods and well-directed efforts should spell success to ambitious projects.

A child born on this day may be energetic, aggressive, enterprising and not averse to taking chances in a big way. It may also be public spirited, humane, kindly and disposed to help its fellows forward on a sound basis.

* * *

For Monday, June 20.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of rather conflicting conditions, with many events undertoned by peculiar, secret or even sinister situations. There may be much perplexity and anxiety owing to these subtle situations, which may bring sorrow to some. Young persons may give concern. There are signs of duplicity or fraud, and intrigues in intimate associations may not be pleasant.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of contradictory conditions, with some joys and successes, but much anxiety, doubt, perplexity, intrigue and treachery, although there also are signs of friendly circumstances. Safeguard the health, be careful with writings and not overanxious about youthful problems.

A child born on this day may be lively, versatile, probably crafty and more or less irresponsible, being changeable, adventurous and romantic. Yet, it may have a serious side and may have a brilliant mind.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Bill, of course!" I exclaimed with joyous relief when Katherine had proposed a solution for insuring Hank a watchful companion on his visit to the specialist, if Dicky should be called away.

She flushed with the embarrassed pleasure which any personal praise of her registers, provided she is not on active nursing duty.

"You'd have thought of it yourself in another second," she said quickly. "But I'm glad you approve. Now the next thing is to manage Bill's going without either Dicky or Hank—or Bill himself—guessing why."

I waited for a long second before answering her.

"We mustn't let Dicky or Hank guess why Bill is going," I said at last, "but—don't you think it might be a good idea to take Bill into our confidence—perhaps not the whole way, but to some extent.

"I certainly do," she replied promptly. "From what I observed during that episode of Hank's watching the rabbit die instead of putting it out of its misery, Bill has no illusions about his brother which could be shattered."

"No," I agreed with a sudden memory of a long-past, tortured reference to Hank and his dead mother which Bill had given me. "He hasn't. But—" I paused and Katherine spoke with quick and comprehending sympathy.

"I know," she said. "It isn't going to be the easiest task in the world, but you have this advantage. Bill adores you, and thinks you're just about infallible. You're the one person in the world who could talk to him about this."

Katherine's eyes followed mine to Faith, who was showing distinct signs of being weary.

Faith Near Sleep.

"You won't have to wait long for an opportunity," she said. "That blessed lamb is going to be asleep in nothing flat after she has had her bath and is tucked in for the night. Then I'll take the branch telephone in my own room where I can keep an occasional eye on her.

"Indeed, no," I returned heartily. "I'll get you the keys. But—lock yourself in. He guards the sanctity of that room most carefully, you know."

"Do I?" she countered. "I'll be most careful."

I was at the door by the time she finished, and going to my own room, I took my father's keys from the hiding place where I keep them secreted. When I returned I found that she had arranged upon a small table everything which I would need for giving Faith her bath and putting her to bed. Then Katherine left.

I found myself quavering with something akin to fear as I went over to the play pen, spoke Faith's name softly and held out my arms invitingly. Suppose she should cry for Katherine, rejecting my care of her! It seemed to me that I could not bear it if she should not welcome me, and for a long second, Faith fixed me with her unwavering baby stare.

Then Faith gave her gurgling laugh, put up her arms, enunciated militantly, "Up! Up!" and my anxious tremors fled.

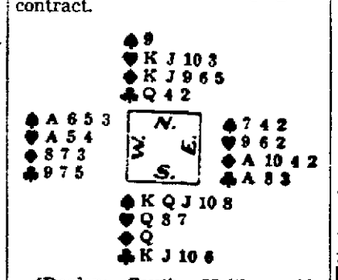
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE PICTURE CHANGES

No trumps is a difficult declaration if you hold a singleton in the suit with which your partner responded to your opening bid. You man have a hard time then to bring in his suit effectively. But if, after rebidding your own suit, he names a third in which you have three cards, you probably can develop the necessary communication between the two hands. Granting satisfactory stoppers in the fourth suit and enough general strength, you can soundly steam on to a no trump game contract.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.

When North and East passed, South opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Spade, North responded with 2-Diamonds, South 2-Spades, North 3-Hearts and South 3-Spades. North feared making any further bid and there it remained.

In the play of the hand, the declarer lost nothing but the four aces, which made him realize the mistake he made in not bidding for a no trump game after his partner was able to bid two suits.

CHAPTER XXXII

"Clay! Oh . . . . you're joking!" Larry tried to laugh to hide her sudden confusion. "I thought you were serious for a minute."

"But I am serious. Absolutely. There are several reasons that look good to me. In the first place . . . . we are going to get married some day, aren't we?"

"I suppose so." Larry blushed.

"Well. . . . Considering my situation, it might save a lot of argument if we could merely say 'so what?' to the Honorable Romulus. He'll have to take it or leave it. I think he'll take it, after he cools off. That's one reason. Another is rather selfish I suppose. But I'd feel so much more content and settled in my mind. I could do better work. . . . I can't express it so well, but it would be really living, you know. We could have a honeymoon later, maybe while I was looking for a job. How much of a sport are you, Larry?"

"I . . . I don't know. I'm not sure."

"All right, Mums. I'm counting on you. What do you say?"

"I hardly know what to say," Mrs. Layne countered. "I'm as much surprised as Larry. It seems like a rather rash thing to do . . ."

"I don't see why," Clay urged. "I can't seem to make anybody understand that I'm going to love Larry so long as I live. This thing is for keeps. No matter how long we wait, we'll have some things to iron out after we team up. We're only humans. So, why not get started and not waste time? I'm sure. Larry's sure. You are, aren't you?"

"Yes," she said simply. The light in her gray eyes as she looked trustingly into Clay's blue ones would have convinced anyone.

"All right. Then why can't we cut out this division of living and settle down to getting some place? I've an idea that Uncle is going to be shelved for some time. If I can prove to him that the mill can exist and keep going according to my ideas, all may turn out very rosy yet. After all, I've got to give the old gentleman a fair run for his money."

"But Clayton . . ." Mrs. Layne was suddenly puzzled. "I can't see how it would give you any more time to devote to Mr. Wardlaw, if that is what you mean. You'd see him even less, if you had to get settled in a home of your own. Of course I would expect you to stay here . . . in fact, you should until you know exactly what you're going to do. But I still don't see . . ."

"I'm afraid I forgot to mention that particular advantage," Clay remarked imperturably. "After Larry and I are married, we're going to live in the Wardlaw house. For a time, at least."

Larry gave a little gasp.

"Clay! No! I wouldn't live there for . . . for a million dollars! I couldn't!"

"Why not? You might not have a chance, after the first thirty days. And a month might have exciting possibilities. You needn't be afraid of Uncle. He wouldn't have to know you were there."

"I just couldn't think of it! I'd die . . . while you were away!"

"Well, here's the situation," Clay explained patiently, noting the amazed look on the faces of his two other auditors. "I'm working under a signed contract with Uncle. He changed it not long ago to the extent of giving me twice as much money . . . merely a bribe to get me to take back a thirty-day quitting notice I had served on him. But the agreement has another clause . . . still good . . . that I have to live under his roof. So that gives my wife and me free room and board for a month. That's something, any way you want to look at it."

"But, Clay . . ."

"A minute, dear. I want to add that good old Annie Kime will help put it across. She's been aiding and abetting me scandalously . . . crazy about you, too. I'll promise you there will be no difficulty. Can you do it for me, Larry . . . or will I have to insist on my rights?"

"You . . . you mean soon?"

"The sooner the better."

"Oh, it . . . it sounds perfectly mad! To get married so soon . . . like that. I'm afraid." she faltered. "I can't help it, Clay."

"Larry!"

* * *

It was Muriel, whose childhood sweetheart was killed in an accident. She was leaning forward, her hands clenched tightly together. Her brown eyes were wide and shining with a strange light, her lips quivering pitifully. "Larry!" she repeated.

"What, Muriel? What is it?"

"Do it, darling! Do what Clay is asking . . . Oh, you must! You're going to be happy together. I know it. I can tell. Don't waste one little hour that you can be together! Life is so short . . ."

With a little sob she sprang to her feet and hurried from the room, leaving her mother and sister to look after her through eyes suddenly tear-filled. Clay drew a long breath and his voice was slightly husky as he said:

"Bless her sweet heart. She's right, Larry. You know she's right."

Clay Odell's quiet insistence, aided more than he suspected by the gentle Muriel's outburst, finally won a reluctant consent from Larry to be married in a week's time. Clay fancied it would be best for them to slip over to the county seat and have the ceremony performed with a hope of avoiding undue publicity. But Mrs. Layne was adamant.

"No, indeed," she told him positively. "I can't give Larry the kind of a wedding I would like, but it's going to be in her mother's house. It's bad enough when marriages end in court. It's no place to start one, to my way of thinking. Besides, her family's going to be there."

Griff, who chanced to be present at the council, supplemented, "You can't enjoy a good cry in court, even if you are hearing a life sentence."

"It will be all over town in no time," Larry sighed, "no matter what we do. I can't imagine why you think your uncle won't hear it, Clay."

"Well, so far, he hasn't had a single caller. Tough, but true. I can't believe that anyone will barge in to tell him about us, before we get around to breaking the news ourselves. About the only chance is his seeing it in the paper. Maybe I can induce the editor into suppressing it. If not, we'll tell Annie to have some accident befall the sheet. I don't think Uncle reads local news, anyway. He gives his time to the city dailies."

"It may work out. But I'm still scared . . . about everything."

In spite of her fright, Larry made a lovely bride when the trying hour came. A lump came into Clay's throat when he saw her coming down the steps of the front hall, dressed in a simple little gown of white, the waves of her brown hair gleaming like a crown. Her large eyes looked so appealing that the groom was put to it to keep from picking her up bodily and holding her in his arms. He was saved by Griff, serving as best man, who muttered under his breath:

"You'd better be good to that kid, damn you, or I'll kill you."

The ceremony was brief. Mrs. Layne's eyes filled with tears as the responses were given, burying her head against Muriel's shoulder. The latter watched her sister's face intently, a quiet peace reflected in her eyes, as if the occasion in some fashion were a substitute for her own lost wedding.

* * *

Mrs. Layne's minister was an elderly man, tactful and sympathetic. As soon as his part was concluded, he congratulated the newly married pair and took his leave.

"What does one do now?" Griff asked the small group, by way of relieving the tension. "There's no fun throwing rice, because I'll have to run the vacuum cleaner. Let's eat cake."

"Cake?" his mother inquired, with an undignified sniffle. "Are you hungry?"

"You'd be surprised. You will be surprised. Come on back to the kitchen."

By the time the others obliged, he came out of the pantry bearing a lofty cake, marvelously decorated.

"Compliments of H. Schloss," Griff explained, rummaging a butcher knife from the table drawer. "Here you are, Mrs. Yodel. Do your stuff. But don't cut the bride and groom. I only borrowed that."

"How do you like your job?" Clay asked his brother-in-law in an aside, while the refreshments were being sampled.

"Pretty good."

"I'll tell you," Clay confided. "If there isn't an earthquake after this, I'm going to see to it that you get your job back at the mill. I'm pretty sure I can manage it before long."

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

THE other day I traveled on a hilly road that finally led down to a broad, open valley. Sheltered by long branching trees, in a lot of three acres or more, were five steep-roofed pig sties, with open doorways to the southeast.

They looked interesting, and I stopped, climbed a fence of low, strongly woven wire with a menacing barb on top. I came to the first and found it empty. The floor was of oak planks and at the back and sides, small windows with heavy wire tacked over, served as ventilators. The whole interior was clean and airy. I felt I already was well acquainted with the farmer.

The next sty was empty also, but the workmanship was finely done, and it was as clean and wholesome as the first. Then I heard a noice that came from the next house . . . the low contented grunt of a mother pig, feeding her young. I crept up close beside the back of the pen, that I might look through the small wire opening. I smiled. There, three feet beyond me, lay a black sow across the door, and twelve pigs busily suckling.

No, there were thirteen! One little fellow crept out from among the others and gave a hungry squeal. He shivered even though the sun shone through the door. He tried to find one single place to grip and feed, but every place was taken. He was Thirteen, and most unlucky.

Finally the sow got up and moved herself very carefully to a bed of straw in the corner, where she laid down on her other side. The thirteenth pig was pushed out the door by his fellows in their scramble to reach their mother first. I sneaked round the corner, grabbed the forlorn and shivering one, and made off across the fence. I felt like Tom, the Piper's son. I wrapped the orphan in a gunny sack and drove to the farmer's house, across a little draw. He met me with a smile and said, "I thought I saw a stranger in my pig lot." In turn I handed him my little, whimpering package and explained.

"I expected that tomorrow,—well, the boy will like the runt." He called a lad of five, and gave the pig to him, with the admonition to feed and care for it. Then he thanked me for my trouble.

I knew that the entire family will be comfortable.

Bees Threaten Cubs' Chances

Take Both Ends of Twin Bill From Chicagoans.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—An emergency session of the Chicago Cubs' famed "board of strategy" was held today in an effort to shake the Bruins out of the slump that threatens to wipe out their National league pennant chances.

The Cubs have been highly inconsistent in their play. They dropped both ends of a doubleheader to the Boston Bees yesterday even though they used their pitching aces, Bill Lee and Larry French.

The Bees took the first game 1 to 0 and the second 3 to 2. Jim Turner outpitched Lee to get the decision in the opener. The game's only run came on a home run in the seventh inning by Catcher Ray Mueller.

New York took full advantage of the Cubs' slump to increase its lead by downing St. Louis 10 to 3. Cincinnati also moved up on the Cubs by downing Brooklyn 4 to 3 in 11 innings and then pounding out a 12 to 10 victory.

In the other National league game, Pittsburgh bested Philadelphia 4 to 3 in 10 innings.

Cleveland increased its American league lead over the idle Yankees to a full game by defeating the Athletics 8-1. Jack Wilson pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox for his seventh triumph and enabled his team to move within one game of the Yanks. Washington and Detroit divided a doubleheader, the first going to the Senators 12-10, and the second to the Tigers, 4-3.

Allen Scores 8th Straight Victory

Yields Only Five Hits as Tribe Turns Back Macks, 8 to 1.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Johnny Allen, temperamental right-handed pitching star of the Cleveland Indians, today remained among the American league's top-flight hurlers and kept the Tribe on the pennant path by scoring his eighth consecutive triumph.

Allen, winner of 15 games as against a single setback last season, was beaten opening day this year but has not tasted defeat since. His eighth straight victory came yesterday as Cleveland took an 8 to 1 decision over the Philadelphia Atheletics. The triumph enabled the Indians to increase their lead to one full game over the New York Yankees who were idle.

Stingy But Wild.

Allen gave the Athletics only five hits, but was in trouble frequently because of his wildness. The burly mound ace walked seven batsmen.

Philadelphia's lone run came in the fifth inning when Lou Finney singled and rode home on Bill Werber's triple.

Buck Ross started in the box for Connie Mack, but wasn't much of a puzzle. The Indians got to him for three runs in the opening inning. Lyn Lary started the splurge with a single and scored in front of Bruce Campbell, who hit a home run over the right field wall. Sammy Hale was then safe on Wayne Ambler's error. He went to third as Averill singled and was plated as Hal Trosky grounded out.

Cleveland scored two more runs in the fifth, another in the seventh and its final two counters in the eighth.

The Indians hammered Ross and Edgar Smith, who relieved him in the seventh, for 12 hits. Averill set the pace with three safeties in four trips to the plate.

Hudlin on Hill.

Willis Hudlin, who has worked mainly in relief roles this season, was Manager Oscar Vitt's hurling nomination for today. Lynn Nelson was to oppose him.

Mrs. Linster Beats Possum Women's Mark

Slices Two Strokes Off Par In News-Journal League.

Mrs. Thelma Linster established what is believed to be a new all-time record for women scoring at Possum Run yesterday when she trekked the 18-hole layout in 75 strokes.

Fashioning the remarkable score in the first day of play in the News-Journal Women's league, Mrs. Linster bested women's par by two strokes. She came within four strokes of tying men's perfect figures.

Her Best, Too.

The total was also an all-time low for Mrs. Linster, wife of Pete Linster, one of the city's better known golfers.

Mrs. Linster's Card

First nine—
Women's par	436	464	345	—39
Mrs. Linster	425	454	345	—36
Second nine—
Women's par	336	445	436	—38—77
Mrs. Linster	435	545	535	—39—75

Her card against men's figures showed one birdie and 12 pars as she swept the course with her brilliant play.

On the first nine, Thelma went over men's par only on the ninth hole when momentary trouble forced her to take a five on the par four. She deuced No. 2 for a birdie.

Mrs. Linster encountered a bit more trouble on the outside nine after completing the turn in 36. However, men's par beat her by one stroke on only four holes. She carded a 39 on the outside.

Against women's par, Thelma scored five birdies and 10 pars. The only holes she went over one stroke were No. 10, 13 and 16.

Needless to say, she won her match without a great deal of difficulty. A member of Strome's Grocers, Thelma defeated Mrs. Vera Oberlander, who shot a 96.

Patty Oberlander also won her match for the Grocers to give them an even split with the Liberty Shoes. Mrs. Elsie Staiger and Mrs. Bertha Pilot won for the Shoes.

Edge Candies.

Mark's Market edged the Bates Candies, 2 to 1, in the other match. One of the matches was postponed.

Lillian Marks rolled out a 92 for the Market, but she was defeated by Mrs. Alice Byrnes, who took the point with the aid of a handicap. Mrs. Florence Schlegel and Mrs. Hazel Vild won the Marks' points.

RICE SOPHOMORE SETS HURDLES RECORD

MINNEAPOLIS—(U.P.)—With one new meet record already in the books, contestants in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Track and Field championships planned assaults upon several others in the finals today.

Fred Wolcott, Rice institute sophomore, set a new NCAA mark with a sparkling effort in the 120-yard high hurdles. He stepped over the barriers in 14 seconds flat, to edge out the 14.1 mark established by George Saling of Iowa in 1932 and tied by Forrest Towns of Georgia in 1936. Wolcott's time equalled the American record set by Bob Osgood of Michigan last year.

UNDEFEATED LEADERS MEET AT JOHNS DIAMOND MONDAY

THINGS will pop in the city recreation's Class A softball league Monday evening.

Several changes are certain to result when the city's premier softball aggregations tangle at Prospect and Johns parks.

One of the games will break the tie for first place, and the other will determine third place.

Heading the program is the tussle which brings together the Richland County Fish and Game association team of North park and Johns park on the latter club's field.

These two teams are undefeated, and the winner will take sole possession of first place.

In the other game at Prospect park, the hosts and Liberty park will collide in the game which will at least temporarily leave one of the two teams in the cellar.

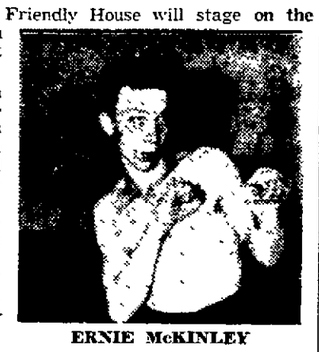
Both games have the earmarks of developing into interesting softball struggles, and they should attract two of the largest crowds of the season.

Champions to Parade At Friendly House

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

A PARADE of champions, Mike Wentz calls it. And, we may add, Mike is right.

The amateur fistic show the Friendly House will stage on the playground on North Main street a week from tonight will be just that—a parade of champions.



ERNIE McKINLEY

Ten champions will appear on the outdoor card, which will be augmented by many former kings and potential crown-bearers. An action-filled lineup of bouts should be presented by this classy array of mitt talent.

There will be no championships to decide on this program, but the fighters have reputations to uphold, and they should swing plenty of leather during the proceedings.

Champions Wentz has already lined up are Paul Carbetta and Tom Clemens of Mansfield, Ernie and Mel McKinley, Frank Parker, Dale Oyster and Mike Ambers of Ashland and Dan Matthews, Bill Scott and Otis Scott of Marion.

Jesse Owens' fame has dwindled considerable since his Ohio State days, but the dusky Cleveland sprint star need not worry over the future. It is estimated that Owens grossed over $200,000 since his triumphant return from the Berlin Olympics. He received 65 per cent of the gross. Most of the money has been invested in annuities. Owens' earnings are said to have been enriched to the extent of $50,000 for campaigning in behalf of Gov. Landon in the last presidential campaign.

Dempsey Picks Max By Kayo

NEW YORK — (INS) — Jack Dempsey today picked Max Schmeling to knock out Joe Louis and regain the heavyweight title he lost to Max Baer.

"I'm picking Max by the knockout route," said Jack. "Because that's the only way he can win. If the fight went the limit, Joe probably would get the decision, but I expect Max to stop him as he did before."

Taper Off For Title Battle

SPECULATOR, N. Y.—(INS)—Max Schmeling today put on the gloves again for a final three days of walloping sparmates before leaving for New York and the real thing.

Undistrubed by the shouts of confidence coming from the Louis camp, Max goes about his training without concern. He was scheduled for six rounds of boxing today and Sunday before experts and an audience of fans, and four rounds Monday.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J.—(INS)—Joe Louis' conditioners are building him up mentally as well as physically for next Wednesday night's battle, and today share the brown Bomber's optimism wholeheartedly.

League Park Scene Of Double-Header

Hi-Speeds, Merchants Meet Undefeated Canton Club In Only Games In City on Sabbath.

TWO of the city's stronger baseball clubs face a tough assignment in Mansfield's only games Sunday at League park in a double-header.

The twin bill tosses Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds and the Mansfield Merchants against the undefeated Canton Moose outfit. The opening tilt in which the Hi-Speeds will tackle the invaders gets under way at 1:30 p. m.

Canton, unbeaten this season and sporting a string of eight triumphs against some of the better semi-pro clubs in the state, will trek here with a lineup which includes two former Ohio State league players.

The Ohio State league players who face the Mansfield clubs Sunday are Keating and Houtz. The former holds down the left field, while Houtz will play in centerfield.

Listed among the invaders' victims are the touted Cleveland White Sox, Ellwood City, Pa., club and Barbarton Columbia Chemicals.

Herrick will send Petey Beer to the mound in the first game in a effort to chalk up the Hi-Speeds' sixth victory of the season. Beer has pitched all the wins for the Hi-Speeds.

Either Beckley or Woll is expected to face Herrick's crack outfit as the Canton team attempts to register its ninth victory.

Manager Russ Remy has not announced who will handle the pitching duties for the Merchants, but he may go to the mound himself against the Moose club in the nightcap.

Canzols Play Three Tilts Over Week-end.

THE Merchants were also scheduled to be in action today at League park where they were billed to face the Ira D. Ling Canzols.

Today's tilt will also be the first of three on the week-end schedule for Jeff Holmquist's oilmen. The Canzols will perform at Spencer Sunday.

Pete Metz or Bill Boliantz was expected to get the nod for today's game, with Gil Weigand likely to toil for the Canzols. Weigand was point for his third straight win.

The Canzols will play a double-header at Spencer, and will assemble at Ling's service station at 10:30 a. m. for the trip. The first game is scheduled at 12:30 p. m.

Al Boyer, Willard Lockhart, Joe Blackwell and Karl Theaker will be available for mound duty in the Sunday games.

Legionnaires Hope to Cut Newark String

Invade League Leaders' Park For Game Sunday.

It will be somewhat of a "homecoming day" for Manager Dewey Durant, Tommy Moxley and Harold Geiger when they appear with the American Legion club in a Central Ohio league game at Newark Sunday.

But whether it will be a successful homecoming for the Mansfield baseball stalwarts remains to be seen.

Newark Unbeaten.

Newark, you know, is undefeated this season, and there appears to be some question in the Licking county city whether the Legionnaires can stop the streak.

It will probably take the Legion team at its best to win Sunday, but Durant is optimistic.

He figures Geiger can make it pretty tough for the Newark club, and, consequently, will start him Sunday.

If Geiger should find it difficult, Durant will have Donald Dudley, Lefty Ellis and Harold Patterson to throw into the fray.

Although rained out last Sunday, the Legionnaires have held several workouts this week, and Durant said today that the club is rapidly reaching top form.

At least one new player will appear in the Legion lineup Sunday. He is Ed Henrich, who replaced Charley Baker on first.

Former Residents.

Durant and Geiger are former residents of Newark, and played many years on the Newark diamonds. While never a resident of Newark, Moxley performed with Newark teams in the past.

Virtually all of the players to appear in the Newark lineup are known in local baseball circles. Newark will probably line up with Tomlinson, 1b.; Wise, 2b; Naylor, 3b.; Lowery, ss; Elwell, Priest and Mills, outfield; N. Beinhover, c, and Ankrum or Taylor, p.

LEEDY'S .462 AVERAGE SECOND IN C. O. LEAGUE

COLUMBUS — Jay Simmons, New Philadelphia outfielder, went hitless in five times at bat last Sunday against Newark and his batting average in the Central league dropped from .500 to .333. Meanwhile, Enold, a teammate, jumped from sixth place into the lead with the healthy average of .474. He has collected nine hits in 19 times at the plate. Another important change saw K. Naylor of Newark take third place with .450. Leedy of Mansfield is still second with .462.

Sunday's games: New Philadelphia at Columbus Federal Glass, Mansfield at Newark, Marion at Coshocton and Logan at Lancaster.

RECORDS THREATENED

PRINCETON, N. J.—(U.P.)—Several world records were in danger at Princeton's fifth annual invitation track and field meet today, but the one most likely to go was the 4:06.4 mile mark held by Sydney Wooderson of England.

Hogan, exalted ruler of the lodge, sponsor of the team, will throw the first ball. O. Redmond will receive the first pitch, with Ed Tillman at bat.

'Masters Lose To Local 40

Zents' Radios Gain League Lead With 5-4 Win.

The defending champion Schoolmasters dropped their first game of the season yesterday when they bowed to Local No. 40, 15 to 14, in a Y. M. C. A. club league slugfest at Prospect park. Local 40 cinched the decision in the eighth with a six-run rally. The Schoolmasters rallied in the first of the ninth, but the seven runs they sent across the plate were one short of tying the score.

Nehl and Laughlin pounded out three hits apiece to lead the Local No. 40 team, which tallied eight runs in the second. Freeman obtained three blows for the losers. Davis of the Schoolmasters and Bosh of Local 40 hit for the circuit.

Scoring four runs in the first inning on three hits and a pair of errors, Zents' Radios trimmed the Catholic Foresters, 5 to 4, at Empire field. The victory gave the Radios undisputed possession of first place.

Brown of the Radios was in hot water almost constantly as he issued nine walks, but was almost invincible in the pinches, 16 of the Foresters being stranded. Miner led the losers' attack with a triple and double.

The Wesco club defeated the Hermits, 10 to 4, at Liberty park in the only other game reported.

The Schoolmaster-Local 40 boxscore does not appear today as it was too illegible.

LEGAL BARRIERS KEEP HOMELESS JEWS FROM U. S.

Thousands Find Haven Here But Destitute Ones Face Fate At Hands Of Nazis.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of thousands of eyes of persecuted peoples in central Europe are turned prayerfully toward American today for deliverance from the knout of racial hatred.

But girdling this promised land —where persons may own property without fear of confiscation, may worship as their conscience dictates, and speak their thoughts without fear of the physical brutality and imprisonment of concentration camps, because of their race or political views—is a legal fence through which comparatively few can gain entrance.

Jewish political refugees from Germany and what was Austria, by every boat, are pouring into the United States at the rate of 1,500 a month.

But these are the chosen few who, still luckily possessing ample financial means or having relatives in this country legally responsible for their care, could enter in normal times.

Face Immigration Laws.

America affords no present hope of haven for the other countless tens of thousands of refugees, such as the 51 wandering Jews of Kittsee, whose poignant fate at the hands of the Nazi government when Germany seized Austria was revealed in dispatches from H. R. Knickerbocker, International News Service roving foreign correspondent, yesterday and the day before.

Stringent immigration laws, in effect since 1924, will bar all but a few thousands of the total number of refugees.

These strict regulations enacted by congress, can be changed or relaxed only by congress, and will not, barring a special session, convene again until next January.

Total annual immigration from Germany (including what was formerly Austria) is limited by law to 27,370. The German quota was 25,957 and Austria's 1,413. The Austrian quota was absorbed into the reich last March.

In previous years, because of the strict provisions of the immigration act, less than half of the quotas, on an average, have been filled.

This year, although there has been a sharp upswing since the Austrian anschluss, the quotas will be far from filled. Under the law, the quotas apply annually and the unfilled portions cannot be carried over into the following year.

Intensified since the Austrian absorption, tens of thousands of frantic political refugees have clamored at offices of American consular agents for immigration visas to the United States. Only those able to comply with regulations are being admitted.

As for the fans, they always were crazy about him and they still are. When Babe attended our night game Wednesday the fans almost mobbed him trying to get his autograph or shake his hand."

Ruth has repeatedly said he would never play, coach or manage a minor league club but just as often he has expresesd a desire to join the Dodgers in some capacity.

The Babe made his decision to don a uniform again after a conference last night with MacPhail, Burleigh Grimes, manager of the team, and Leo Durocher, the team's shortstop and captain.

SEES YOUNGEST SON WED TODAY

cinth blue net, poke bonnet of natural straw and big bouquet.

The marriage ceremonies were performed by the Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherill, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, and the Rev. Endicott Peabody, 81-year-old headmaster of Groton school, who has taught all the Roosevelt boys and officiated at their marriages as well.

March Near President.

The bridal couple was played out of the church up the right, red-carpeted aisle — missing the traditional center aisle only because the church has none—by the strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march.

They marched within a foot of the chief executive and first lady, and almost as near to Secretary Morgenthau, Postmaster General Farley, Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, Bernard Baruch, financier friend of the president, and scores of prominent in New England society.

Present were 20 persons bearing the Roosevelt name, but absent were the more prominent Republican members of the Roosevelt clan, including Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth daughter of "Teddy" who sent her "regrets," and the Theodore and Kermit Roosevelts.

And behind the ancient organ, installed in 1879 and played today by Malcolm Lang of Boston, were two youthful organ pumpers who confessed themselves to be of Republican leanings.

The ceremonies ended, the bridal party led the 350 who could squeeze into the church to join 300 others at the century-old Nahant club for a reception highlighted by a champagne toast to the bride.

John and Anne set their honeymon "escape" for 4:30 p. m., eastern daylight time, concealing their destination, but according to persistent report, they were headed for the Roosevelt summer home at Campobello Island, New Brunswick, before sailing for Bermuda.

THEATER

EVERYONE who saw the stage play of "You Can't Take It With You" will be interested in the screen version which is being planned at Columbia. In fact some of the first scenes have already been shot. Lionel Barrymore will play the old philosopher of the mad Sycamore family; Spring Byington will play the definitely goofy Mrs. Sycamore, James Stewart and Jean Arthur have the roles of the only two sensible persons in the cast; Mary Forbes and Edward Arnold are the parents of the boy.; Hallwell Hobbs is the brother and Mischa Auer the dancing teacher. Others in the cast are Ann Miller, Samuel Hinds, Dub Taylor, Donald Meek and Clarence Wilson.

* * *

"Birth of a Baby."

For one week, beginning Sunday the Madison theater will be taken over by the Special Pictures Corporation of which William N. Skirball of Cleveland is president, for a showing in Mansfield of "The Birth of A Baby." Skirball is one of the present lessors of the theater which is operated by Warner Brothers. Jack Skirball, brother of William, is the producer of the picture which has aroused a controversy of criticism and approval throughout the country. The full length feature tells the story of maternity from the time of early pregnancy to the delivery of the child. Picture of an actual birth are included. The major characters are the expectant mother, the doctor, her mother-in-law and a younger girl. Several short features will be shown with the picture.

"Three Comrades."

A story of gallant love and undying friendships of gaiety and tragedy is told in "Three Comrades," which opened an engagement at the Ohio theater today. This is Eric Remarque's story of three young boys who survived the tragedy of the World war and vowed eternal friendship, and who found that war is no greater tragedy than a post-war world which has no place for the young and the ambitious men who want to be re-instated as civilians. A cast of more than ordinary promise was used to make the picture. Robert Taylor is Erich and Robert Young is seen as the gay Gottfried whose life is forfeited in a mad, depressed world. Franchot Tone is Otto and Margaret Sullivan is the gay little Pat over whose life hangs a threatening spectre. Critics herald it as one of the great love stories of the year.

* * *

"When Were You Born?"

Anna May Wong, exotic Chinese actress and one of the ten best dressed women in the world, in an astrologer who predicts a man's death and then has to solve his murder in order to clear herself of the crime. "When Were You Born"? which the Majestic shows Sunday and Monday, was inspired by the fact that five million persons in the United States guide their lives by astrology. Margaret Lindsay, Lola Lane and Anthony Averill play the important roles in this mystery drama. "Numbered Woman," the second feature, reveals the private life of a private nurse and her war against the underworld. Sally Blane, Lloyd Hughes and Mayo Methot head the cast.

* * *

"Penitentiary."

Young love on a prison threshold is woven neatly into the story of "Penitentiary" along with the unraveling of what goes on in the big house in the feature picture being shown at the Ritz Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The film, which tells the story of a psychological jailbreak, rather than the traditional prison riot, stars Walter Connelly, John Howard, Jean Parker and Robert Barra. The second feature running the first three days of the week is "Life Begins at College" with the usual Ritz Brothers tomfoolery leading the cast of Joan Davis, Tony Martin and Gloria Stewart through a light romance.

LEADERS POST HIGHER MARKS IN EARLY MART

Brokers Find Comfort In Figures Showing Smaller Reduction In Store Sales.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock market leaders posted slightly higher prices in today's early dealings, although there was an assortment of small losers and numerous issues were unchanged.

Ahead at an extremely slow opening were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco and United Aircraft.

General Motors, Consolidated Edison and N. Y. Central were in arrears.

Brokerage quarters found some comfort in the figures of the federal reserve bank of New York disclosing department store sales in the metropolitan area for the week ended June 12, were off only 11.5 per cent from the comparable 1937 week in contrast with a drop of 14.9 per cent in the preceding week.

TWO TOWNSHIPS HAVE NO RELIEF

Sandusky Joins Perry Township In Select Class; County Bill Cut $3,000 In May.

Sandusky township, in western Richland county, today was in the select ranks with Perry township as the only Richland county subdivisions that had no relief cases last month.

Sandusky township trustees were able to eliminate their entire relief burden as the total county relief cost dropped from approximately $21,000 in April to $18,089 last month, Relief Director Earl A. Nist's report showed. Perry township had no relief cases in April.

To meet the county cost, only $5,529 was available today, and that amount represented the June allocation of poor relief funds by the state which was made today to County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe. The funds will be allocated by county commissions on the basis of the needs of the cities and townships.

Four townships in the vicinity of Mansfield had the heaviest burden of relief cases in May, Nist's figures showed. At the top of the list was Madison township with 404 cases and total expenditures of $4,570. Springfield township west of the city, was second with 31 cases and $445 in expenditures, while Monroe township, to the southeast was third with 13 cases and $157.

Washington township trustees spent $105 during the month to care for four relief families. Worthington township spent only $16; Butler township, $17, and Plymouth township, $18.

The relief costs in Mansfield last month totaled $11,500.

PACT RUMORS SHAKE EUROPE

Prague Hears Nazis Attempt To Negotiate Agreement With Russia.

tion of the report is that it represents a German effort to frighten England into abandoning her support of this country. According to this view, Germany could use the report of Russo-German negotiations to say in England:

"Either you give me a free hand in Czechoslovakia or we shall make a treaty with Russia."

It is a fact that most British statesmen, notably Winston Churchill, considered the possibility of a Russo-German alliance as one of the principle even though seemingly remote dangers threatening the peace of Europe.

Wants Litvinoff Ousted.

One odd feature of the projected plan in its present version is that Hitler is said to have laid down two conditions. First, that Maxim Litvinoff must resign as Soviet foreign commissar and second, that Gregori Dimitroff of reichstag fire trial fame, be removed from the chairmanship of the Communist International.

Acceptance by Stalin of the plan itself, much less the conditions, is believed in authoritative circles to be absolutely excluded. But this does not lessen significance of the report upon which a curious light was thrown by an independent and authentic account of the attitude of Poland on the day of the Czechoslovak mobilization.

On that day Poland also massed troops on her Czechoslovak frontier with the apparent intention of getting her share, whereupon Moscow warned Warsaw that the red army would march into Poland if Poland attacked Czechoslovakia.

Warsaw then asked Paris whether the Franco-Polish military alliance would hold good in such a case, and Paris said "no." Thereupon Poland withdrew her troops, declared her neutrality and left Germany without the support upon which she had depended.

Reports of an impending Yugoslav-Italian pact also are interpreted here as directed against Germany. Thus diplomatic circles analyze Germany's position as one demanding even such extreme measures as an attempt by the Nazi government to obtain at least the neutrality of Soviet Russia.

Yellow River Flood Spreads, Millions Are Menaced

College Grads, Anxious For Jobs, Face Dilemma As Result of Depression

—By JANE WILLIAMS

AMERICAN TRAGEDY: Last week American universities and colleges turned out thousands of young men and women with brains, ability and ambition. And there isn't any place for them. They offer their training and their ambition in exchange for jobs that will pay them a respectable living. But there will be few takers. When, and if, they do secure places in the economic scheme, they will of a necessity push out some one else who needs the place as much, or more, than they.

When announcement was made several days ago that a motion picture company would produce "Personal History", the story of modern youth told with blasting truthfulness, the company received a letter from a 19-year-old student at the University of Arizona:

"Will motion pictures dare to show the stark circumstances of Young America? Can they dare illuminate the plight of young men and women, whose learning, earnestness and ambition face a world that has no place for them? Can Hollywood look with their eyes at a civilization whose walls threaten momentarily to fall crashing to the dust before them?"

Orators are still telling graduates that the world is before them, that there are as many frontiers now as there were two centuries ago and that frontiersmen and trail blazers are needed. Which may be true—but the devil of it is there are 10,000 average young men and women for every trail blazer.

* * *

AT Conley Clinical hospital, Kansas City, there was a most important abdominal operation this week. Surgeons, students and cameramen crowded around for this unusual case.

Forceps gleamed and snipped. All but one pair. That was the black, corroded, seven-inch pair, that was taken from the patient's abdominal cavity. Just like Little Boy Blue's toy soldier, they had been there for three years probably awaiting the coming of the young surgeon who had blithely left them there. Incidentally, a foot of intestine had to come out with the forceps.

The story didn't say whether the woman had to pay for having them taken out. It would seem unfair to have to pay twice for the same forceps.

* * *

THERE is still indignation over the city at the proposal of the city administration to make home owners bear the entire poor relief burden. Excerpts from letters I received this week will give you an idea:

"I am a widow. I have a little four room home and I manage to make a very poor living by doing odd jobs. I scrimp and save to pay my taxes now. Why should I, who have too little to eat and go without proper clothing in order to keep off relief, have to contribute to the poor relief fund when my neighbor's two sons and daughters, all employed and living at home, will pay nothing?" . . .

"You aren't the bright girl I think you are if you can't see that the proposal to tax real estate for a relief fund is a political smoothie, aimed at a minority voting group. The smartest mayor Mansfield ever had committed political suicide when he, in a similar situation, proposed an occupational tax which would have been a small but fair tax. The present administration is much too foxy to make the same mistake." . . .

"I know so well all of the tricks of fooling stupid old John Public. The proposed two mill levy will bring in, not the $90,000 needed for relief but $140,000 a year and no one knows it any better than city officials. But they'll manage to use up the excess." . . . (That was from a former city official).

"What of the several hundred workers in Mansfield who make their living here but who live outside the city and township?" . . . "I own several properties. I can and will pass the tax on to my renters in increased rent. But what about the home where there are several workers with steady employment? Only one tax will come from that home."

All of which may give you an idea that the proposed tax on real estate for relief purposes, isn't popular with the minority group at which it is aimed.

* * *

GREEK-AMERICAN citizens who attended the Ahepa convention here have much to learn of American customs—especially convention behavior.

I didn't see a single drunk, nor any of them shouting in restaurants.

* * *

MRS. H. S.—So sorry I couldn't write the story you asked me to write. But you gave me no details about your friend except that she had suffered for seven months as the result of the accident, and you gave me no way to find you to get further information. I do indeed admire her for her courage and I hope she'll find health and happiness in her new home.

FAIR ENOUGH!

An Answer to Challenge On Accuracy of Figures Concerning Gambling

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—John T. Gibson challenges my contention that the people of this country gamble much less than they are popularly supposed to. I cited returns to show that in 1935, in the 18 states which permitted and supervised gambling on horse and dog races, the total business was only $257,562,000. By other methods, I arrived at the conclusion that the annual American expenditure for Irish sweepstakes tickets was only $21,000,000.

Of course, there is no way of knowing or estimating the amount whose investors received no run for their money in the Irish sweeks. Even the promoters admit that counterfeits are sold here and that if an agent selling genuine tickets wants to steal the money the individual suckers have no recourse.

* * *

If it will be of any comfort to the other side of the argument, however, I will admit that the traffic in counterfeits and uncompleted dealts is equal to that portion of the sweeps here which, although illegal, we may, for the sake of clarity, call legitimate. That would raise the American expenditure on the Irish sweeps to $42,000,000 a year. The known volume of gambling even then is only about $300,000,000 a year, and I have to insist on the importance of the fact that the bulk of this money is wagered under legal, open conditions.

Mr. Gibson drifts off into the dream world frequented by those who believe Americans bet in billions.

"Most of the money bet on the horse races in the United States is bet by persons absent from the track," says he. "The pari-mutuels handle at most about 10 per cent of the money bet on horse races. Independent bookies handle the rest."

Says he, but does he know?

Nobody known how much money the bookmakers handle. But we do know that much of the money wagered with bookmakers is represented in the mutuel figures, because bookmakers make a practice of dumping bets into the mutuels to inflate or deflate the track odds.

I cannot claim to know any better than Mr. Gibson the amount of the bookmakers' business, but I do know that those who frequent poolrooms are, for the most part, scratchy, unless bums, and that if you were to pay $100 for the privilege of frisking a roomful of them you would be betting against yourself.

* * *

We have to admit, however, that the bookies' customers include many fairly prosperous occasionals, periodicals and habituals who do business by phone on 24 hours' credit. But these are an absolutely unknown, fluctuating quantity, and Mr. Gibson offers no evidence that the book trade is nine times the track business. He just says so. I might grant—only for the sake of argument—that it is twice as great, but the total volume would then be only about three-quarters of a billion, and there is still no reason to think that gamblers would give up horse betting to patronize a national lottery which gives slow action and clips a thousand losers for every winner.

I don't care. Go ahead and have a national lottery. But look at the countries which have chewed the muscle off their own arms to feed their bellies, France, Germany, Spain, Italy and Cuba, for example, and observe how peaked they are.

2,000 Jews Jailed During Night of Terror

FLEE AS NAZIS BANDS SEARCH BERLIN HOMES

Store Windows Smeared With Paint; Purge Spreads To All Sections Of Reich.

BERLIN — Tired, frightened Jews stole back to their homes today after another night of plodding the streets while their homes were entered, many of their fellowmen arrested, and scores of Jewish shops marked with the "curse of non-aryanization."

Jews avoided their homes during the night, fearful that Nazis—some in uniforms and others in civilian clothes—would take them into custody if they could find them.

Bands of Nazis roved the city, smashing the windows of Jewish-owned shops and painting warnings on them that they must not be patronized.

The anti-Jewish wave spread to all corners of the third Reich.

Reports from outlying districts indicated that several thousand Jews had been arrested. In Berlin alone it was estimated that more than 2,000 were taken to jail.

Quizzed For Hours.

Many of those arrested were released after hours of questioning, but others were held for further investigation.

The panic in the Jewish community increased along with the acts of terrorism.

Windows in several large shops on the Koenigstrasse, across the street from the Berlin city hall, were so covered with painted slogans that it was almost impossible to see into them.

In the Grosse Frankfurterstrasse, groups of small boys ranging in age from eight to 13—roughly those at the age of Nazi pre-Hitler youth organization members—trudged along the rows of shops and helped in the painting. The caricatures in one instance showed a crude gallows from which was hanging the body of a Jew.

Members of the diplomatic corps became apprehensive as the terror of Jews increased. Foreign consulates reported a huge increase in applications for visas. They reported that the situation was greatly complicated because many Jews, already equipped with visas, were unable to get their passports which had been confiscated by the Reich during the last several months.

COMPROMISE ON RELIEF FADES

Prospects For Action Next Week Dim, Senate Insists On Its Own Plan.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Prospects for legislative action next week on a compromise relief program appeared remote today because of senate insistence that the house consider the entire senate plan before putting disputed bills into the hands of conference committees.

The deadlock appeared tighter after Sen. Keith Lawrence, D., Cuyahoga, senate majority leader, refused to name senate conferees to work with house managers on disputed financing and administrative bills until the house acts on two remaining measures in the senate program. It had been anticipated that conference committees would start work Monday.

The house will reconvene Tuesday, but Speaker Frank R. Uible flatly rejected the senate demand and announced the house would do nothing more on relief legislation "until the conference committee sits." The senate will not meet again until Wednesday.

The senate bills thus far not considered by the house authorize subdivisions to issue notes and borrow in anticipation of 1938 and 1939 beer and liquor permit fees and empower subdivisions within a county to transfer relief funds. Both measures were sent to the house taxation committee to take their regular course.

TEACHERS FACE MORE 'ACUTE' RESPONSIBILITY, EDITOR SAYS

(By Associated Press)

SANDUSKY — School teachers face new and "more acute" responsibilities, Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, declared in a prepared address before the Ohio Education Association convention today.

The first of three major problems confronting people of the United States is the "political problem," he said.

"The generation now coming into age and power will be called upon to choose between the processes of despotism and the processes of democracy and representative government," Patterson declared.

He told teachers there was "no need to spend time and nervous energy distinguishing between the operations of communism and fascism" because "simply stated, the isms can be reduced to despotism."

Patterson said schools are also faced "with the problem of the growth of crime and the increase of criminally minded in the United States" and with "the splendid task of creating in a youth a sense of personal responsibility for corporate action."

Supt. E. L. Bowsher of the Toledo public schools said in an address yesterday that "the major emphasis of high school training should be for those going into manual labor instead of white collar jobs."

"Vocational education has a definite place in the public school system," Bowsher said. "Ohio muffed the ball in failing to get the necessary public moral and financial support for the schools.

"The state department of education should take care of vocational schools financially, and industries should be sold on vocational education."

FORFEIT BONDS

Fail to Appear in Court on Traffic Code Charges.

Two out of town motorists forfeited bonds when they failed to appear in municipal court in answer to charges of violating the traffic code.

Herbert M. Rice, Lima, forfeited a $20 bond when failing to appear to answer charges of careless and reckless driving filed by state highway patrolmen.

Clarence Warren, colored, of Canton, forfeited a bond of $16.30. He was charged with failing to have an operators license.

Up and Down THE STREET

What's in a name? Perhaps nothing in many instances, but in Hollis F. Pace's case there is plenty. A member of the Okoboji Indians, a national organization of trapshooters, Pace's Indian name is "Stop 'Em Quick". And Pace (not actually an Indian, of course), who resides at 135 Benton street, did just that to his opponents the other day at Cedar Point where the gun club held its annual shoot, winning one of the major championships.

When the new stream-lined Broadway Limited train of the Pennsylvania railroad went through Mansfield last week on an exhibition trip, James C. Appleman, 779 Maple street, was not in the crowd of interested spectators at the depot. It wasn't lack of interest, however, but because he will be seeing it "from now on." Appleman, a postal clerk on the Pennsylvania lines for more than 30 years, has been assigned to the new train.

Mansfield Kiwanians who will attend the national Kiwanis convention in San Francisco June 26 will be gunning for attendance honors when they go to the west coast. With at least a dozen Mansfielders at the convention, Dr. W. H. Wolford, past president of the local club, predicted that one of the attendance awards may be returned to Mansfield. Points in the contest are based on the number of miles delegations travel to the convention.

The chilly breezes yesterday were no barrier to more than 300 youngsters under 15 years of age who jammed the Liberty park swimming pool to take advantage of "free day" at the pool. Clad in makeshift swimming suits, which in some cases were only knee-length trousers, and old dresses and bloomers, the boys and girls took over the park pool from 9 a. m. until noon. Monday and Friday mornings are given over to the youngsters who would be unable to use the pool if they had to pay, Service-safety Director Tracy Styert said.

5 PROVINCES INUNDATED BY RAGING TIDES

Japs, Still Blaming China, Says Thousands Already Perish In Overflow.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI—The great Yellow river, for centuries the "scourge" of China, was running wild today, and threatened to make 50,000,000 persons homeless within 30 days.

There seemed little prospect of halting the floods which have spread to sections of five provinces and made a lake of thousands of square miles of war-torn territory.

Japanese military authorities said they were unable to check the river's rampage.

The waters continued to rise as torrential rains beat down on all sections of north-central China, bringing a 44-foot rise in the river during the past two days.

50,000,000 Menaced.

"Fifty million persons will be homeless within a month unless the floods are controlled," said J. E. Baker, director of the international famine commission.

The floods, threatening to halt the entire Chinese-Japanese war, were the worst in China since 1855, when the muddy Yellow river stormed a new course eastward to the sea. Today, there was a possibility it might take another course.

Casualties were inestimable. Some Japanese military authorities believed that the deaths were "running into the thousands."

Chinese military authorities charged that the Japanese high command was encouraging the flood. They said that Japanese airplanes deliberately bombed the river's great dykes.

The Japanese countered with charges that the Chinese themselves, disregarding the enormous cost of lives, were blasting the dykes to halt Japanese armies marching on Hankow, the provisional capital 300 miles south of the river.

Despite the floods, Japanese authorities said that there were heavy troop concentrations in the Yangtse valley for a concerted push northward to Hankow.

Head of Factory Now 'Evangelist,' To Speak Sunday

Robert Gilmour LeTourneau, of Peoria, Ill., a manufacturer who turned "evangelist," will speak Sunday at the Grace Gospel Tabernacle, 85 East Third street.

LeTourneau is president of the R. G. LeTourneau, Inc., manufacturers of heavy grading equipment.

He began repairing and manufacturing these instruments in 1918 when he returned from war service and found the garage business he had been engaged in had failed.

Before long he was building ground scrapers and the success of the product led to his entrance into the manufacturing field. Today his concern employs several hundred persons with factories located at Peoria, Ill., and Stockton, Calif.

He spends every week-end now speaking in various churches, and before various organizations. He will speak here Sunday at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. The Nyack Missionary Training School girls' trio will sing during the services.

BEGIN CHECK-UP

Crop Reporters Launch Farm Inspection Tour Next Week.

Twenty-nine crop reporters, the "contact men" for the federal soil conservation officials in Richland county, received final instructions at the courthouse yesterday before starting their check-up on compliance with the 1938 program.

The reporters will start next week on inspection tours of farms in the county to learn if farmers have complied with requirements of the federal crop program. Payments to farmers will be based on the extent to which they have reduced their acreage of soil-depleting crops.

Crops to be checked by the reporters include wheat, corn, oats and potatoes.

Yesterday's session, held in the probate court room, was in charge of Guy Taylor, chairman of the county soils committee. Assisting Taylor in distributing information to the 29 representatives were John Cummins of Sullivan, district field man for the federal program, and County Agent George B. Ganyard.

MISSIONARY SPEAKS

Rev. C. A. Natte, missionary from Nanking, China, will speak Sunday at the Central Methodist church during the 10:30 a. m. service. Rev .Natte has been doing missionary work in China for the past 15 years.

HOLD RECEPTION

First Presbyterians to Welcome New Members Sunday.

A communion meditation and reception for new members will be held Sunday at the First Presbyterian church during the 0:30 a. m. service.

Rev. David N. Roller, pastor, will preach on the subject, "The Wedding Garment."

RETURN HOME

Richland Trustees Back From Cedar Point Convention.

Members of the Ohio Association of Township Trustees and clerks, including a number from Richland county, closed their three-day annual convention at Cedar Point yesterday by adopting a resolution asking the state legislature to reconsider a bill which would have given trustees and clerks $1 per day wage increases. The bill was defeated in the senate earlier in the year.

The resolution asked that pay of township officials be based on population and the amount of work the office demands.

In a talk before the convention, J. R. Thomas, of Hayesville, president of the state trustees-clerk group, advocated administration of relief by township trustees.

"Professional relief workers want relief contralized in the hands of county commissioners," he said.

AUDITOR SPLITS BALANCE OF TAX

2 Subdivisions, Only Ones Who didn't Get Advances, Receive Full Shares.

Only two of the county's major sub-divisions—the city of Shelby and Madison township—who didn't find it necessary to ask for tax advances, received their full settlements today when County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe distributed the first-half year real estate tax receipts.

Advances had consumed nearly three-fourths of the total $613,000 collection, and the auditor had only $158,000 left to allocate to the county and its sub-divisions.

In better financial condition than the others, so far as operating funds are concerned, Shelby received its total share of $28,000, while Madison township warded off advances and received its full $9,800, the auditor said.

Mansfield, which will receive $21,300 as the rest of its share of the receipts, already has consumed $94,336 in real estate collections so far this year.

The county has used all but $11,600 of its $94,600 share and Mansfield schools, which gets a slice of the tax money amounting to $181,912, have used all but $10,000 in advances.

The state of Ohio will receive $5,200 from the first-half receipts, representing inheritance tax and the county's contribution to the bureau of inspection of public offices.

FIRST SERMON

New First Lutheran Assistant to Speak Sunday Evening.

Rev. Milton P. Engelhardt, new assistant pastor of the First Lutheran church, will preach his first sermon at the church at 7:30 p. m., Sunday since coming to Mansfield. His subject will be "Not Ashamed."

Rev. Engelhardt came to Mansfield June 1 from Chicago, succeeding Rev. J. David Mumford, who became pastor of a Lutheran church in Bucyrus.

Every man is given sense enough to mind his own business, but few men are willing to let it go at that.

Whiting Williams Sees Both Sides.

OVER in the next column Charles P. Stewart, Washington correspondent, calls attention to difficulties that will be encountered by the man who will later be named to administer the new wage-hour law just passed by congress.

Stewart tells of several men who have been mentioned for the position and dwells particularly on the fitness of former Assistant Labor Secretary Edward F. McGrady, whose acceptance is deemed unlikely.

Without having the slightest idea of whether he would be at all interested, it seems pertinent to suggest that Whiting Williams, of Cleveland, a Richland county product, who was heard in Mansfield Thursday evening in an address on the subject, "Can Labor, Capital and Government Get Together," is apparently just the type of person who should be chosen for such a position.

For the past twenty years Williams has been an earnest student of employer-employe relationships and has developed a broad and sympathetic understanding of the problems involved, together with sound ideas of how differences can be best adjusted and disputes settled.

There is also the fortunate circumstance that Williams enjoys the friendship and confidence of sound thinkers among employes and employers alike, thus being in position to serve as a mediator in connection with disagreements that will naturally arise under this new law.

Without assuming to present the name of Whiting Williams for the new post, it may at least be put forward that a man possessing similar—and at least equal—qualifications, should be chosen, rather than one of the academic or economic theorists who have been proposed.

Auto at Under $500 Next In Order.

SOMEWHERE in the great automobile industry there must be a man, or group of men, who recognize a growing need for a stanchly built, serviceable family or business automobile that will deliver at under $500—possibly as low as $400 or less.

While the volume production of recent years has made possible a considerable reduction in car prices, inclination has been to build lower priced cars to conform so closely in appearance to those in higher price brackets that economies in manufacturing have not been sufficient to justify a price that would be within the reach of millions who are not now new-car prospects.

With something above 25,000,000 passenger cars in use in the United States, it is estimated that around 14 per cent are purchased new each year, in replacement of those scrapped and in addition to the previous total.

Practice in the automobile field has been to let used cars of gradually decreasing worth and efficiency serve the need of prospective purchasers in the under-$500 range, while around $800 has been regarded as a minimum delivered price for a new car.

Quantity production of a well-built automobile to deliver for under $500 would not only find a waiting market but would also go a long way toward providing more employment in the motor industry and associated lines, thus helping to alleviate the depression conditions under which the country is struggling.

Such a car would need not have the ornate appearance of higher priced models, nor would it need be equipped with all the expensive gimcracks that have come into vogue in the past few years—it could provide merely what is intended of it—dependable individual and family transportation at low cost.

There is an extensive field in the automotive industry for such a car—who will be the first experienced and qualified manufacturer to respond?

One for All, All for One.

THE MEANING of "collective security" is made clear by Pierre Cot, former French air minister, speaking at the national congress of reserve officers.

"They say France should defend herself only if attacked. To say that not one French soldier should expose his life for Czechoslovakia means not one English soldier should shed his blood if France were attacked. Collective security is a condition of French security."

Collective security was one of the basic ideas of the League of Nations. It was assumed that all the "good" nations would unite against any "bad" aggressor nation. Foreknowledge of this alliance of righteousness against wrongdoing would prevent aggression. Failing that, collective action would check it quickly.

The idea seemed simple and practical. It has not worked out so. Even the nations that frankly condemn an aggressor are not willing to apply either military force or economic pressure. Although the sanctions against Italy were severe enough to create discomfort and resentment, they were not complete enough to stop the Italian conquest of Ethiopia. In fact, they were applied only partially and half-heartedly.

The world wants peace, but there are many selfish interests at work now which block operation of the collective principles stated in the league covenant.

With the Time So Short.

A SERIES of cartoons of Vassar girls shows the sad picture of a final exam. "Only five minutes more and three centuries to go!"

Sometimes life looks like that. With economic and social thought so far behind industrial accomplishment, and less than no time to get them working on the same team.

While we are feeling so deeply concerned about the Japanese bombings of defenseless Chinese cities, how do we feel, and what can we do, about the fact that Japan has become the United States' best customer for war supplies?

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

WHERE shall we go on vacation this year? Millions are asking that, in spite of the hard times.

And millions are going.

The majority will motor. That will be a life saver for the oil companies, whose industrial business is nil.

Hundreds of thousands will go via train. The majority will ride in modernized, air-conditioned day coaches, better than the parlor cars of a few years ago. Others will patronize luxury trains, preferably the new streamlined speedsters. Once the railroads believed passenger business merely the "cream." Today it is the part of the business that is making the payrolls—while mills and factories supply little freight tonnage.

Air travel continues to increase, steamer travel shows an upward trend in cruises.

Where do the people get the money? After all, there IS some money left. When those who can do spend a little, business begins to feel more cheerful.

Business will begin to feel more cheerful than ever this summer. More than 13,000,00 automobiles are expected to be touring. No other country in the world could say that. Yet we are the most depressed nation in the world today.

* * *

VACATION NECESSARY.

Governments themselves are beginning to recognize that vacations are necessary. Once they were scoffed at, except by the wealthy.

There may be many horrible things in Germany, but there the government sees to it that everyone can have a vacation (except those in concentration camps).

In America, new labor contracts contain a vacation-with-pay clause.

Vacations are seen as necessary for protection of the health and morale of the people.

* * *

NONE HERE.

But in Spain and in China there can be no vacations. The Spanish Loyalists still fight for their lives against the Insurgents and their Moorish, Italian and German allies. In China, the nation battles not only the invading Japanese, but flood torrents and famine as well.

Nature is cruel.

Even in a large part of Europe, where there is peace, a drouth ravages the land. Food will be high this summer and next winter in Europe — food high and wages low.

* * *

NATURE FORCES PLACE?

Some observers say that the drouth in Europe will prevent a general war.

But men are fools. Leaders will wave flags, shout patriotism, arouse hysteria—and peoples will march to their doom. Nature cannot stop them.

Wage Law Administrator's Big Job

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The administrator, under the wage-hour law, will have a job fit to turn one's hair gray.

The various industrial boards (a board per industry) will do the initial fixing, but the administrator will possess the veto power over their findings; consequently all the grief will be up to him in the long run.

Naturally such regulation will be desperately ticklish business.

Of course there will be clashes between industries, clashes between capital and labor, clashes between sections, clashes between producers and consumers, clashes between conflicting labor groups, and, maybe, clashes between conflicting groups of employers.

Moreover, the law is tremendously complicated. There will have to be no end of interpretations. Litigation will result.

For a couple of years, at least, the whole thing will be a plexus of uncertainties.

* * *

McGRADY?

My own notion is that former Assistant Labor Secretary Edward F. McGrady (who is prominently mentioned) would be the ideal selection for the post.

McGrady, as a mediator of disputes, while in the labor department, was a perfect wonder. Labor trusted him, as a loyal unionist. Employerdom trusted him, for he was fair with it. He has, in short, a trustworthy temperament.

He was, to be sure, long identified with the American Federation of Labor, with which John L. Lewis' Committee on Industrial Organization now is on terms of such bitter hostility. Still, with his record as a conciliator, I think he might bridge even that gap.

However, McGrady is a radio executive today. It probably would be a dickens of a financial sacrifice to him to accept a government appointment.

He's the kind of chap to make sacrifices for the general good—but there are limits with all of us.

* * *

SENATOR WAGNER?

Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York also is suggested.

Wagner would fill the bill from united labor's standpoint. And I surmise that capital might indorse him—not enthusiastically, but so-so.

The drawback to Wagner is that, in order to become wage-hour administrator, he would have to retire from the senate. One would suppose that he would have better judgment than to relinquish a comparatively peaceful senate seat for so awful-promising a place as the wage-hour administrator.

* * *

OTHERS

Others spoken of are:

Leon Henderson, formerly of the NRA's economic staff, now WPA economist.

Isador Lubin of the bureau of labor economics, department of labor.

Professor Harry A. Millis, Chicago university economist and mediator in many capital-labor controversies.

Merle Vincent, counsel for the International Ladies Garment Workers.

Lloyd Garrison, dean of Wisconsin law school.

* * *

PRACTICAL MEN SCARCE

These folk might be all right as economists—theorists.

They are not in a class with a practical workingman like Ed McGrady, who started life at the feeding end of a printing press.

The point is, however, that theoretical economists are available.

They WANT government jobs.

The practical folk graduate into more profitable positions and simply cannot afford to be governmentalized.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I always wanted to be a drummer boy—but not any more.

I found out from Charlie Carroll, Al Donahue's drummer boy. The first man in the band to arrive and the last to leave is the drummer. If he has all the instruments he must have to be a good drummer, it takes a ten-ton truck to move him. And his instrumental overhead would make a violinist with a brace of Strads look like a penny-pinching piker.

One of the dustiest jokes around a band is for the boys to gather around and watch the drummer set up or "break down" and wisecrack: "Aren't you sorry you didn't study the flute?"

* * *

I WAS not alone in that business of wanting to be a drummer boy, though. With some, it has developed into something more than a boyhood ambition. The Duke of Windsor, for example. In his Prince of Wales days, he never could resist the temptation to step into the band and beat off a tattoo. Bill Leeds, the tin plate millionaire, is another who likes amateur drumming — and Harold Lloyd, who has rat-a-tatted in some of the best orchestras in Hollywood—and Jackie Cooper—and Frank Veloz, who (Yolanda tells me) often misses a dance step when they glide by the drum stand.

Charlie Carroll says being pushed out of the drummer's seat by drumomaniacs is just another thing that a fellow has to put up with. But, diplomat that he is, though only 21 years old, Charlie adds hastily that he's not troubled that way by guests at the Rockefeller's Rainbow Room where Donahue is now playing.

Charlie was the youngest of the big-time band drummer boys until Dave Tough came along with Benny Goodman. Dave's only 19. Charlie has three other distinctions (1) The boys all call him "Buttercup" (2) he's a Flatbush, Long Island, boy who made good, and (3) he's 5-feet-10 and weighs only 110 pounds.

He has everything in his layout but kettle drums and he's taking lessons on them now—from Bill Gladstone, the boom-boomer in the Radio City Music Hall orchestra. He practices two hours a day—and I thought all you had to do was hit those things. Charlie practices on rubber pads so he won't disturb the neighbors. I know a piccolo player I wish would practice the same way.

* * *

IN CASE any kids want to be drummer boys when they grow up, Charlie says to tell them to remember that a complete outfit including cases, cost about $1,500. Charlie's cost about $900 and he hasn't put in the kettle drums yet. What's more, modern swing is death on drums. Charlie has had four sets since 1930.

That includes bass and snare drums, large and small tom-toms, six cymbals, wood blocks, cow bells, temple blocks (oriental stuff), chimes, bells, mufflers, greeco cymbals, brushes, sticks, mallets, a gong and a vibraphone.

There's a whole lot more to being a drummer than just beating a drum.

Listen, World!

Those Middle-Aged Meanies.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Queer, isn't it, that fallen arches, false teeth, a teeny bald spot, a touch of deafness and sciatica should, by common consent, entitle the human mammal to become an unmitigated bore, bully, pest and general pain-in-the-neck?

Sounds ridiculous, but it's true. And, chances are, you see a dozen demonstrations of it daily amongst your own acquaintances. Middle-Aged Meanies — of all malignant mortals, they're the worst! To the casual spectator, they may seem pleasant, sociable, self-controlled ladies and gentlemen. Their affairs are in order, they are blessed with comfortable homes, loving kin, fair health. But let someone or something rile them and they'll pull a tantrum that'll make a teething baby look like an amateur.

Bertita Harding, in her vividly dramatic book, "Golden Fleece," dissects one of these pests with a wicked pen. "Golden Fleece" is the touching life story of Franz Joseph, Emperor of Austria, and the lovely Elizabeth he so worshipped, yet powerless to protect against the heckling of his vicious mother.

Archduchess Sophie — there was the prize Middle-Aged Meanie of all time. No act was too trivial to escape her venomous jealousy. Early in life, her unhappy son "found himself marvelling at the outrageous petty caprices which older people permitted themselves. It looked almost as if with advancing years each generation reverted to the misconduct proper to its nursery tantrum days. It was your privilege to be obstinate, rude or self-centered, provided you were old enough to discard elemental rules of conduct. Nothing else could account for the malice of the middle-aged in giving way to a churlishness for which their juniors would be thrashed.

How neatly that description fits many an irate elder in your own circle! Particularly those who have achieved Special Nuisance Privileges and Exemptions by becoming parents. Life is one long fume and fret for these aging blights who ruthlessly disregard every law of civilized society to relieve their spleen or obtain their own ends.

Such teapot tyrants give, of course, endless reasons for their ructions. Sorrow...worry...disappointment. Yet starry-eyed Youth suffers from identical handicaps, and longs as ardently to take it out on the innocent bystander. But does Youth get by with it? Notta chance—with the whole world waiting to slap their young ears down!

What a pity that the same treatment cannot be meted out to peevish adults! How much happier this weary world would be if Mad Mamas and Petulant Papas were given a sound paddling, if, when and where they deserve it. Instead, they receive a consideration and respect which they have long since forfeited and are naturally encouraged to go on being cusseder and cusseder. If their doctors dast, they'd admit that more people die of their own cantankerousness than of all the hardened arteries, fattened hearts and pickled livers combined.

In view of which, one may wonder why once-civilized human beings should allow themselves to become pests. The reason is pitifully plain. Middle-Aged Meanness isn't merely a bad habit which creeps up on you unconsciously. It is a deliberate and extremely convenient racket. By no other method can lazy, vain, jealous or bossy mortals obtain so much pleasing publicity or inflict such gratifying misery with so little effort on their own part.

What's Happened?

A Week-End Summary of Current Events.

AFTER four tempestuous days, marked by bitter squabbling between Roosevelt friends and foes in the Democratic party, congress finally adjourned Thursday night after voting $3,753,000,000 for renewal of the administration's spending-lending program.

When the end came senators and members of the house scurried homeward to renew acquaintance with constituents or to become actively engaged in campaigns for re-election.

Plans had been to adjourn by June 11, but the 14 conferees assigned to tear apart two wage-hour bills and make something out of the pieces that would pass did not finish the job until Sunday, June 12 (when the temperature in Washington was 95°).

So Monday morning the Democratic "big four" on Capitol Hill—Garner, Bankhead, Barkley and Rayburn—held another of their weekly huddles with President Roosevelt, and adjournment on Wednesday was planned.

Monday afternoon congress stamped final okays on measures to centralize supervision of commercial aviation, create a maritime labor board, revise the food and drug law, relax restrictions on wheat planting in '39, and set up a Public Health Service division to deal with stream pollution.

And John L. Lewis caused a stir by camping in Speaker Bankhead's office to urge approval of a bill penalizing government contractors who disregard labor board decision and wage-hour standards.

The Wage-Hour Law.

Tuesday the house passed the wage-hour law, 290 to 89, and the senate whooped it through without counting the votes.

The wage-hour law covers hundreds of thousands of worker in interestate industries. The wage "floor" when it takes effect will be 25 cents an hour, a year later it will be 30 cents, and still later boards to be named are expected to advance it toward 40 cents. The hours "ceiling" will be 44 a week at the start, 42 the second year, and 40 thereafter. Many exceptions are permitted.

House Labor Chairman Mary T. Norton felt "all pepped up over it." General Motors Chairman Alfred P. Sloan, jr., warned it would "penalize the very group it is supposed to help." And the senate discussion of it indicated its constitutionality would be challenged in the courts.

Legislation making postmasters of first, second and third class offices "career men" who may hold their jobs for life was sent to the White House. And the $3,753,000,000 relief and public-works bill was approved wholly in the house and partially in the senate.

Another Delay.

Wednesday the senate took its time. For hours is discussed states' rights in connection with the $375,000,000 flood-control bill, then passed the measure.

The house overrode, 244 to 87, President Roosevelt's veto of a bill continuing low interest rates on some federal farm loans.

Conferees settled differences between the two houses on farm-benefit payments provided for in the big spending-lending bill.

But by then differences had arisen over the deficiency appropriation — so adjournment again was deferred.

A Glance At the Record.

This, the 75th congress, set a peace-time appropriation record, split the Democratic party, and enacted most of, but not all, the laws President Roosevelt proposed.

It passed crop-control, big-navy, housing, relief, public-works and tax laws. It did not pass the Roosevelt supreme court bill or provide for a New Deal in governmental organization. And its tax measure did not satisfy the president.

Thirty-four senators' terms expire this year. Five—Hill, Pepper, Reynolds, Gillette and Davis—have been renominated. One—Hitchcock — has been defeated. Two—Dieterich and Reames—did not enter primaries already held.

That leaves 26 yet to run for renomination. Opposition was assured by this week to 15 of them —Nye, Thomas (Okla.), Van Nuys, Clark, Berry, Barkley, Caraway, Pope, Bulkley, McAdoo, Smith, McCarran, Tydings, Adams and George. The other 11 are McGill, Hayden, Overton, Brown (N. H.), Thomas (Utah), Gibson, Bone, Lonergan, Milton, Wagner and Duffy.

The president's recent decision to make a transcontinental tour this summer was construed in Washington as notice that he means to fight for continuance of his policies.

At Home

Friction In Auto Union.

President Homer Martin of CIO's spectacular United Auto Workers this week suspended from office Vice Presidents Frankensteen, Wells, Mortimer and Hall and Secretary-Treasurer Addes.

Martin said they were an "irresponsible group" and had done "irreparable harm" by again injecting "destructive factionalism" into the union. They retorted that they stood for "a truly democratic union and not one controlled by the whims of a self-willed and irresponsible dictator."

Then a trial of the five before remaining members of the board of directors, a struggle over the union's bank account, and agitation for a special convention loomed.

Marry Uncle Sam?

Several years ago Prof. Robert E. Rogers of Massachusetts Institute of Technology told collegians to "marry the boss's daughter." Later he suggested marrying the boss's stenographer—"the daughter is broke." This year Rogers advised graduates: "Your most secure and profitable career in the future will be on the public pay-roll. . . . It is only another kind of dole, but you won't mind that."

Sitter Will Walk.

When his workers sat down last year, boss Walter F. Fry sat down with them and said he would not solicit any more orders until they went back to work. Soon both workers and boss went back to work. But this week the nation's No. 1 sit-down boss announced he was going to move his automobile seat cover factory to Georgia to get away from Michigan's high labor costs.

Troubled Earth.

An earthquake shook England, Belgium and France last weekend, killing three persons, injuring 20, frightening millions . . . A tornado hit Clyde, Tex., killing 12, injuring 40, shattering 23 houses . . . A flood wrecked a train near Hematite, Mo., killing the engineer, marooning 35 passengers for eight hours . . . A landslide in Japan derailed two trains, killing 20, injuring 150.

People

Love Wins Again.

"I don't care to marry two people of varying social and financial standing" said the minister who was to marry Andrea (Bubbles) Luckenbach, Long Island millionheiress, and William Dobbs, butter-and-egg salesman. So they got another minister to do it. Bubbles' father objected, too, but in three years she will come into $1,000,000 from her mother's estate.

Girl's Ship Comes In.

Helen Borsos, 19, of Passaic, N. J., had looked for a job for months in vain. Then—she's hazy on details—she became a stowaway on the Normandie. When the ship brought her back this week, and photographers gathered around her, a business man asked who she was, heard her story, and told her: "You start work in my store. . . ."

Mine Rescue No. 2.

"I never was so glad to see a man before," Peter Shinkowsky told neighbors who dug him out of a coal mine Wednesday for the second time in six months. Rescuers had tunneled 46 hours to free Shinkowsky and his son, entombed by a cave-in at Ashland, Pa.

Business

Railroad Problem.

The Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad is bankrupt. A plan to sell parts of it to seven other railroads and abandon the remaining 400 miles was turned down this week by ICC. The commission found it was a plan to prevent rather than preserve competition. Commissioner B. H. Meyer dissented.

And with this case as a text, Meyer warned that America may face the greatest railroad salvaging job in history if the railroads' status is no changed.

* * *

Crop Conditions.

About June 1, the price of wheat was the lowest it had been for five years. Last week the government forecast a record harvest. But this week the price of wheat had gone up. There was fear of black rust. And federal officials held back plans for a drastic reduction in planting next year.

* * *

Spending Splurge.

There's usually a lull in Washington when congress checks out. But this summer government agencies are expected to work at top speed, spending money. The theory is that a dollar spent promptly will do thrice as much as a dollar spent later on.

Already, government agencies have announced they will buy $10,000,0000 worth of clothing and 500,000 cases of grapefruit juice, to keep surpluses from crashing markets and to obtain goods for distribution to relief clients.
